

How To Manage Anger Gaining Control of Ourselves

A Complete Guide to Anger Management

George Anderson, LCSW, BCD

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Part I:

Gaining Better Control & Understanding of Ourselves

Control Log
Contrasting Wheels of Behavior/Constructive Wheel
Destructive Wheel
Anger: What is it? What causes it?
Anger Check List
The Heavy Cost of Anger
Anger Destroys Personal relationships
Anger Disrupts School and Work Relationships
Anger Makes Bad Situations Worse
Anger Leads to Aggression
Personal/Self Awareness Inventory

Part II:

Stress Management

What is Stress?
Skill 1: Awareness
Skill 2: Acceptance
Skill 3: Coping
A Thought About What We Have Learned
Another Way of Managing Stress
How Well do You Manage Stress?
Become a Better Listener
Stress Log
Strategies to Handle High-Risk Situations
Review: Stress Test

Part III:

Importance of Emotions

Develop an Understanding of Yourself
Recognize Patterns of Behavior
Learn to Think of Consequences
Ask for and Listen to Advice
Motivation is the Key to Change
Increase in Empathy
Managing Negative Emotions
Depression
Anger
Anger as a Response to Fear
Responding to and Learning from Anger
Anger Management
Some Reasons for Anger

Some Reasons to Give Up Anger
Recognizing Anger
Expressions of Anger
Identifying High-risk Situations
Problems in Relationships with Other People
The Anger Journal
Your Own Anger Log
Seven steps to Anger Control
Taking a Time Out
Strategies to Handle High-Risk Situations

Part IV:

Communication

Improving Communications with Others
Self-Assessment: Understanding & Dealing w/ Feelings
Roadblocks to Open Communication
Phrases for Miscommunication
Positive Communication Skills
Active Listening Responses
Phrases for Active Listening
Styles of Communication
"I" Messages: Taking Responsibility / What You Feel
Guidelines to Conflict Resolution
What is Open for Negotiation?
4 Points About Respectful Communication &
Conflict Resolution
Quiz: Improving Communication
Action Plan

Part V:

Role Modeling

Communication by Example
Negative Parental Values Communicated
Positive Parental Values Communicated
Quiz

Appendix

Overview of the Workbook
Selected Bibliography
Anger
Stress
Emotional Intelligence
Communication

Conover Assessment Instrument: A tool designed to assess an individual's:

- Interpersonal Assertion
- Interpersonal Aggression
- Interpersonal Deference
- Empathy
- Stress Management Skills
- Change Motivation